The Ethical Side of STMA Membership

Do you know that Sports Turf Managers Association has a Code of Ethics and Professional Conduct Guidelines? Each was developed through the extensive work of the Standards and Bylaws Committee, which is made up of STMA members, for one specific reason: to advance the professionalism of the sports turf manager. “For our profession to attain the highest level of respect within the industry and outside of it, STMA needed to develop a code of ethics and conduct guidelines,” says Bob Campbell, CSFM, and STMA Immediate Past President. Our members created these standards to validate their commitment to be the most professional sports turf managers possible,” says Campbell.

The difference between the Code of Ethics and the Professional Conduct Guidelines is legal enforceability. The Code is legally enforceable and memberships can be suspended. Guidelines are just that: principles to follow that ensure the most professional conduct possible by members.

With the Code of Ethics, the procedure to bring complaints forward about potential violations was also developed. The complaint process begins with a phone call to STMA Headquarters. The procedures also include an in-depth appeals process. For a copy of the policy, contact Headquarters at 800-323-3875. The conduct guidelines are to be peer-monitored.

Code of Ethics

The Sports Turf Managers Association has a Code of Ethics. The Bylaws, Article V, Section 5.8, authorize the Board of Directors to enforce this code by procedures established through standing rules for the conduct of such procedures.

In order to build confidence and respect within the STMA between members and non-members alike, and to be recognized as a professional organization, a code of ethics is not only necessary, but also the observance of its provisions is essential.

Every member of STMA shall take pride in his/her work, derive satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment in a job well done, and regard sports turf management as a profession in which all members strive to maintain its good name.

A vital asset of an STMA member is a thorough understanding and up-to-date knowledge of the sports turf management business.

In order for STMA members to accomplish their goals and to uphold the best interests of the Association, high regard for, and strong enforcement of, the principles of the following Code of Ethics will be deemed a significant indicator of individual responsibility, character, and professionalism.

As a member of the Sports Turf Managers Association, I accept and fully agree to abide by this Code of Ethics and pledge myself to:

18. Members have the right to report and are urged to report all known or suspected violations of the Code of Ethics and to voluntarily participate as a witness and present information in all proceedings to determine the possibility of a violation of this Code of Ethics.

The STMA Board shall administer and apply the Code and shall develop procedures regarding such administration and application.

Professional Conduct Guidelines

The following professional conduct guidelines are provided to encourage the highest standards of conduct among the membership of STMA. These guidelines are a companion document to the STMA Code of Ethics. While professional conduct guidelines may not be enforced with membership sanctions, these guidelines should nonetheless be promoted, practiced and encouraged by STMA members.

Noncompliance with these guidelines should be noted and self-policed by fellow STMA members, officials and affiliated chapters to discourage future instances of such noncompliance. In assessing one's actions, all sports turf managers should ask the question, "Would my actions meet with the approval of other sports turf managers?"
